Exmoor National Park

Exmoor is home to a unique landscape of moorlands, woodlands, valleys and farmland, shaped by people and nature over thousands of years. High cliffs plunge into the Bristol Channel, and cosy pubs and tearooms offer delicious local produce. On Exmoor it is still possible to find tranquility and a sense of peace as well as rediscover your sense of adventure; catch a glimpse of wild red deer, be amazed by dark skies full of stars, and explore villages full of character.

For further information visit:

www.exmoor-nationalpark.gov.uk

An inspiring landscape

Exmoor National Park may not be the largest National Park in the UK, or the wildest, but within its 267 square miles it contains an amazing variety of landscape that provides inspiration and enjoyment to visitors and residents alike. Large areas of open moorland provide a sense of remoteness, wildness and tranquility rare in southern Britain, while spectacular coastal views, deep wooded valleys, high sea cliffs, fast flowing streams, and characteristic hedge banks topped with beech trees all combine to form a rich and distinct mosaic.

A wealth of wildlife

The moorland, woodland, streams and farmland of Exmoor support a great diversity of wildlife including herds of wild red deer, the rare Exmoor Pony, rich lichen communities, rare butterflies, bats, and other species uncommon in southern Britain. Salmon still return from years at sea to travel up rivers such as the Exe and Barle to the same spawning grounds they hatched from.

Treasuring the past

The landscape of Exmoor tells the story of how people have lived in, exploited and enjoyed Exmoor over the last 8000 years. Burial mounds on high ridges, unique and ancient patterns of standing stones, cliff top Roman forts, astonishingly preserved medieval villages and incredible Victorian industrial engineering are all there to be explored.

Looking to the future

In many ways Exmoor is a deeply traditional place, where rural skills and knowledge are still valued, and locally distinctive breeds such as Exmoor Horn sheep and herds of free-living Exmoor are a common sight. But Exmoor is also a place with an exciting future, where “green” tourism and sustainable energy is encouraged and our moorlands are valued for their ability to provide clean water and store Carbon.

Car Free, Care Free Exmoor

There are many advantages to using public transport to get about and explore the National Park. You can enjoy the view to the full and leave behind the strains of driving. Public transport operators are another source of information about the area and you avoid worries about finding parking in congested towns or leaving your car in remote spots and best of all, are not restricted by a parked car, allowing you to take a linear walk, catching the bus at a different place to where you got off.

Catching The Bus

You do not have to be at a bus stop to catch the bus – the bus driver will stop anywhere along the route, when hailed, as long as it is safe to do so.

Dogs

Dogs are permitted on buses, at a small charge, as long as they are well-behaved and are reasonably clean – at the driver’s discretion.

Walking In The National Park

The bus services on Exmoor provide wonderful opportunities for getting out and exploring on foot some of the country’s most beautiful scenery – dramatic coastline, steep wooded combes, open heather moorland and picturesque villages. Remember to wear good, strong footwear when walking in the countryside and be prepared for changes in the weather, even in the summer.

EXPLORE MOOR

Visit www.exploremoor.co.uk for ideas, inspiration and information on enjoying a car free, care free trip on Exmoor. There are itineraries to help you plan a car free day out, links to local accommodation, attractions and food and drink establishments and a series of circular and linear walks all accessible by public transport (staff at the National Park Centres will also be happy to advise you). The site also includes an interactive transport map, timetable links and information on other car free opportunities on Exmoor.
